By the Court:-

With the consent of learned counsel for both the parties, the appeal itself is heard finally and being disposed of by this judgment.

Accused-appellant Jagdish S/o Ramdev has preferred this appeal under Section 374 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, challenging therein the judgment and order dated 16.2.2005 passed by the Judge, Women Atrocities and Dowry Cases, Jaipur City, Jaipur, in Sessions Case No.2/2004, whereby he was convicted and sentenced under Section 376 of the Indian Penal Code to undergo ten years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs.1,000/-; in default of payment of fine, to further undergo two months additional rigorous imprisonment.

The only contention raised on behalf of the appellant by his learned counsel is that looking to all the facts and circumstances of the present case, the sentence of imprisonment awarded by the trial court is excessive and the same may be reduced.

The learned counsel for the appellant has not challenged the order of conviction passed by the trial court against the accused-appellant in view of the statements of PW-3 Maina Bhatia and PW-8 Dr. Premlata Mittal, and rightly so, therefore, it is not necessary to refer and discuss the facts of the case in detail.

So far as reduction of sentence of imprisonment is concerned, I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the appellant in the light of the statements of PW-3 Maina Bhatia, and facts and circumstances of the present incident. I do not want to comment anything on the merits of the case, as the order of conviction itself has not been challenged by the learned counsel for the appellant, however, I find this case to be a fit one to reduce the sentence of imprisonment awarded by the trial court.

Under sub-section (1) of Section 376 IPC the minimum sentence of seven years is prescribed but it is subject to proviso that the court may, for adequate and special reasons, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than seven years.

In Prem Chand Vs. State of Haryana, AIR 1989 SC 937, in the peculiar facts and circumstances of that case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court reduced the sentence of imprisonment of ten years awarded under Section 376 (2) IPC, to a period of sentence of imprisonment of five years. The State of Haryana filed review petition before Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the above case and the same was dismissed. The decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in that review petition is reported in (1990) 1 SCC 249 (State of Haryana v. Prem Chand & Others).

In Ram Kumar Vs. State of Haryana - (2006) 4 SCC 347, their Lordships of the Hon'ble Apex Court reduced the sentence of seven years under Section 376, IPC, to a period of three years imprisonment. Para No.3 of the judgment reads as under:-

"3. The appellant, aggrieved by the order passed by the High Court has filed the above appeal by way of appeal. We have been taken through the statement and evidence recorded by the Court. Our attention was also drawn to the judgment passed by both the Sessions Court as well as the judgment passed by the High Court. The learned counsel for the appellant drew our attention to the statement of the girl Bimla (PW-5) and also drew our attention to the evidence of the doctor. We have carefully analysed the evidence tendered by the prosecution. In our opinion, sufficient evidence was tendered by the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused. However, at the time of hearing it is brought to our notice that the girl has now got married and living with her husband. The said statement is also ratified by the evidence of the father of the girl. Having regard to the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, we are of the view that the sentence imposed by the Sessions Court and as affirmed by the High Court under Sections 366 and 376 of the Penal Code is on the highside. In our opinion, ends of justice would be amply met if we reduce the sentence to three years. We do so accordingly."

In the case of State of Chhattisgarh Vs. Lekhram (2006) 5 SCC 736 the Hon'ble Apex Court reduced the minimum sentence under Section 376, IPC, of seven years to a sentence of one-and-half-year imprisonment, already undergone by accused therein. Para 16 of the judgment reads as under:-

"16. The prosecutrix was a mature girl. She was married. She spent a few months in her in-laws' place. The respondent was working in her house. They, thus, knew each other for a long time. The prosecution evidently could not prove its case that she was enticed away from the custody of her guardian by the respondent on a false plea that he would marry her. She denied the said suggestion as presumably she was aware that she being married, the question of her marrying the respondent again may not arise. She lived for some time with the respondent in a rented house. Both the courts proceeded on the basis that she was a consenting party. The occurrence took place in the year 1986. The respondent preferred an appeal before the High Court in the year 1987. The same remained pending for about 10 years. The special leave petition was filed by the State 230 days after the prescribed period of limitation for preferring such appeal. The delay in filing the special leave petition, however, was condoned. He is said to have remained in custody for about one-and-a-half years. In the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case and having regard to the facts that both the courts have arrived at the conclusion that she was a consenting party, in our opinion, it may not be proper to send the appellant back to prison."

After considering all the facts and circumstances of the present case and above referred decisions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, I think it fit and proper that ends of justice will meet in case the sentence of imprisonment awarded by the trial court is reduced to a period of 5 years rigorous imprisonment with fine as awarded by the trial court.

Consequently, the appeal is partly allowed. The order of conviction passed by the trial court against the appellant is upheld, as not pressed by the learned counsel for the appellant. The order of sentence passed by the trial court is modified and the sentence of imprisonment passed by the trial court is reduced to a period of 5 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.1,000/-; in default of payment of fine, to further undergo two months additional rigorous imprisonment.
